Anna quickly became Rachel's friend, and the two women spent a lot of time together. They went to parties, traveled to Morocco, and even lived together for a while. But as Rachel got to know Anna better, she began to realize that something was not quite right.

Anna's stories about her family and her wealth didn't add up. She would often borrow money from Rachel, promising to pay her back but never doing so. And when Rachel tried to question Anna about her past, she would always evade her questions.

Eventually, Rachel's suspicions were confirmed when Anna was arrested for defrauding banks and businesses out of hundreds of thousands of dollars. Rachel was shocked and betrayed. She had thought she knew Anna, but she had been completely wrong.

Who is Anna Delvey?

Anna Delvey is a Russian-born German con artist who scammed banks and businesses out of hundreds of thousands of dollars. She posed as a wealthy heiress and used her charm and charisma to gain the trust of her victims.

Anna was born in Russia in 1991. She moved to Germany with her family when she was 16 years old. After graduating from high school, she moved to New York City and began working as a photo editor at Purple magazine.

In 2016, Anna met Rachel Deloache Williams, a photo editor at Vanity Fair. The two women quickly became friends, and Anna began to introduce Rachel to her wealthy friends.

Anna claimed to be a German heiress with a trust fund of $60 million. She said that she was planning to open a private members club in New York City called the Anna Delvey Foundation.

Anna's lavish lifestyle and her claims of wealth impressed Rachel and her other friends. However, as Rachel got to know Anna better, she began to realize that something was not quite right.

The Red Flags

There were a number of red flags that Rachel ignored in the early days of her friendship with Anna Delvey.

- Anna claimed to be a German heiress with a trust fund of $60 million, but she never produced any evidence to support this claim.
- Anna often borrowed money from Rachel, promising to pay her back but never doing so.
- Anna's stories about her family and her wealth didn't add up.

Rachel eventually realized that these red flags were signs that Anna was not who she claimed to be. However, she was reluctant to believe that her friend was a fraud.

The Arrest

Anna Delvey was arrested in August 2017. She was charged with grand larceny, attempted grand larceny, and theft of services. She was convicted on all charges in May 2019 and sentenced to 4 to 12 years in prison.

Anna's arrest and conviction shocked Rachel and her other friends. They had never suspected that Anna was capable of such crimes.

The Aftermath

The arrest and conviction of Anna Delvey has had a profound impact on Rachel DeLoache Williams. She has lost faith in her ability to trust people, and she is now more cautious about who she lets into her life.

Rachel has also learned the importance of listening to her instincts. She knows that if she had paid more attention to the red flags in the early days of her friendship with Anna, she would have been able to avoid being scammed.
